Exchange Rates: The par value for the schilling agreed with the Fund on May 4, 1953 is 26 schillings per US dollar. Market rates for the US dollar are free to fluctuate within the limits of about 2 1/2 of 1 per cent on either side of the par rate. Rates shown are selling rates quoted in the Vienna exchange market. Before 1958 rates for the US dollar are the National Bank selling rates.

Annual averages of the middle rate for dollars:

1953	26	25.96
1954	26	25.93
1955	26	25.82
1956	26	25.83

1958	26	25.83
1959	26	25.87

International Liquidity: Line 1 includes the Fund Gold Tranche Position although the Fund accounts are mostly Treasury accounts. Line 11 differs from line 1 because line 11 includes, from January 1959, the net bilateral claims on other European countries arising from the liquidation of ECU and, from November 1959, claims under payments agreements. Furthermore, the National Bank values its gold stock at cost while line 1a values it at 95 dollars an ounce. Line 7a equals line 21 and line 7b equals line 22d.

National Bank: Treasury IMF accounts and Treasury loans to banks and coin issues are consolidated with National Bank accounts.

Deposit Money Banks: Joint stock, Private, Savings, and Mortgage Banks, Agricultural Credit Associations, Industrial Credit Corporations, Post Office Savings Bank and miscellaneous other credit institutions.

Monetary Survey: Consolidation of sections 10 and 20.

Line 31 = 11 + 21 - 26d - National Bank Foreign Liabilities (line 32 = 32a + 32b - National Bank Supplement)

a = 12a + 22a - 16b

b = 22b

appear less favorable (more unfavorable) than the corresponding figures in the BoP. Similarly, larger differences between the balances may arise when the BoP data are based on the exchange record or some other source rather than on the trade returns.

The IFS data on outstanding amounts of foreign assets and liabilities of the monetary sectors and the corresponding data on changes shown in the BoP are frequently based, at least in part, on the same sources.

However, discrepancies may occur in certain periods because of rounding and conversion, because of revisions not yet made in the BoP, and because of adjustments to the BoP data for timing, valuation, and coverage (the BoP entries being confined to those changes resulting from transactions). In a few cases, a reconciliation is possible but complex. On the other hand, when countries base their BoP entries on statistics especially compiled for this purpose, no reconciliation with IFS data derived from bank balance sheets is possible.
